FINLAND REJECTS RUSSIAN PEACE TERMS

Forces Ordered to Fight On

SOVIET-FINNISH ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS HAVE BROKEN DOWN; FINLAND HAS DEFINITELY REJECTED THE TERMS OFFERED, MOSCOW ANNOUNCED EARLY YESTERDAY MORNING, FOLLOWING A MIDNIGHT PRESS CONFERENCE, AT WHICH VICE-COMMISSAR VISHINSKY STATED THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAD MADE EVERY CONCESSION SHE COULD, AND THAT THE ISSUE OF PEACE OR WAR NOW RESTS IN FINLAND'S HANDS ALONE.

MARSHAL MANNERHEIM HAS CALLED ON THE FINNS TO FIGHT ON, STATED FRENCH RADIO LAST NIGHT.

THE GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, ACCORDING TO A REUTER CABLE, SAID LAST NIGHT THAT OFFICIAL CIRCLES IN GERMANY HAVE NO COMMENT TO MAKE.

The following were the proposals offered to the Finns, who were given one week in which to accept them as a preliminary to negotiations on the cessation of hostilities:—

1—Severance of relations with Germany and the internment of German troops and ships in Finland, or else severance of relations with Germany and expulsion of troops and ships from Finland not later than the end of April. In either case the Soviet Government can render Finland aid with its armed forces.

2—Restitution of the Soviet-Finnish Treaty of 1940 and the withdrawal of Finnish troops to the 1940 frontier to be carried out in stages during April.

3—Immediate repatriation of Soviet and Allied prisoners of war and Soviet and Allied civilians kept in concentration camps, or used by Finns for work, while, should the U.S.S.R. and Finland sign a peace treaty and not an armistice, the repatriation of prisoners of war should be reciprocal.

4—Demobilisation of 50 per cent. of the Finnish Army, to be carried out during May, and the transfer of the entire Finnish Army to a peace footing to be carried out during June and July. (This clause should form part of the treaty, or should be shaped in a separate Soviet-Finnish agreement, to be signed simultaneously with peace or armistice treaty.)

5—Compensation for damages caused by Finland to the Soviet Union by hostilities, and occupation of Soviet territory in the sum of 600 million American dollars, to be paid in the course of five years in goods (paper, cellulose, sea and river ships and various machinery).

6—Restoration to the Soviet Union of Petsamo and the Petsamo region, which the Soviet Union voluntarily ceded to Finland under peace treaties of 1920 and 1940.

7—In the event of acceptance by the Finnish party of the above six conditions, the Soviet Government deems it possible to announce in favour of Finland its right to the lease of Hangoo and the area of Hangoo without any compensation.

"The Finnish delegation, Mr. Vishinsky said, "did not propose any corrections of Soviet armistice terms, or present any proposals of its own concerning armistice terms.

FINNS' REPLY

"On April 19th, three weeks after the above terms were presented to the Finns, the Finnish Government replied that the proposals were submitted to the Diet for discussion, in the course of which it was considered that acceptance of these proposals, which are partly impossible of realisation, even for technical reasons, would, to a considerable extent, weaken and violate conditions under which Finland can continue to exist as an independent State, and would impose on the Finnish people burdens which, according to unanimous and competent testimony, considerably exceed its strength.

"The Soviet Government, in reply, stated that the Finnish delegates had said nothing about fulfilment of the terms being partly impossible for technical reasons; that the Finnish attempt to evade responsibility for compensation cannot be justified by anything, and that to say that the Russian terms imposed on the Finnish people a burden beyond their strength was groundless, as the question had not come under discussion.

"It had been made clear to the Finnish delegates that the chief Russian demand concerned the internment or expulsion of the German troops. Nor was it true that the terms threatened Finland's independence, as she had already lost it when she admitted the Germans."

The Soviet Note concluded: "The present Finnish Government does not wish to expel German troops from Finland. It does not wish to re-establish peaceful relations. It prefers to leave its country in vassal subjection to Hitlerite Germany."

General opinion among foreign observers in Moscow, states Reuter's Special Correspondent, is that it is difficult to see how the talks can be renewed, but it was remarked that M. Vishinsky, at the special Press conference, was non-commital as to whether the door to further negotiations was now closed "He made it quite clear, however, that the Soviets can make no further concessions."

THREAT OF REVOLT

Reuter's special correspondent in Stockholm cables that if the military situation on either the Finnish or Baltic fronts changes abruptly there may be far-reaching consequences. "The Soviet statement that the present Finnish Government is not master of its own house is accepted as true by well-informed quarters in Stockholm."

Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, states that the Russian people are now looking to the United States for some move against Finland. New diplomatic moves by the United States would be most welcome at the moment, and most Russians expect them.

Russian Army Preparing For New Attacks

FOR almost the first time since the war started the Soviet Press is almost bare of war despatches, states Reuter.

There is a lull, but the lull is a façade behind which the Red Army, in the view of Moscow observers, is preparing for fresh offensives which, many believe, may be synchronised with Allied offensives from the West and South of Europe.

The Soviet communiqués on Saturday night and last night used the once familiar phrase, "no material change," which has not been seen in an official report since October 6th.

Colonel Karpov, the Soviet Military Commentator, explaining the lull, said yesterday in Moscow: "The Soviet troops have reached lines which are of tremendous importance to both sides, and at which a pause in offensive conditions is quite logical. The rear services have to be brought up, reserves drawn up, and preparations made for a further struggle."

Re-grouping movements, which eclipse any previous re-alignment of forces, are now going on on both sides of the front. The Germans are reorganising new tank divisions from remnants of the units shattered at Uman, Tarnopol, and beyond the Dniester. Guerillas in the Germans' rear have reported seeing columns of tanks bearing many different divisional markings and emblems.

With emphasis now placed on communications, the Red Air Force is attacking troops, trains, lorry convoys, and tanks in their forest hiding-places.

AT SEBASTOPOL

Vichy radio stated yesterday that Soviet troops had launched powerful attacks with strong forces east, south-east, and north-east of Sebastopol. Paris radio said that a thaw has set in along the whole front from Finland to the Crimea, making large-scale operations impossible.

The German communiqué said:—"In the area of Sebastopol, on the Lower Dniester and in the Bukovina, there was only local fighting on Saturday. Between the Carpathians and the Upper Dniester German and Hungarian troops threw the Soviets further back in hard offensive battles. Enemy counter-attacks were repulsed. South-West of Narva our attacks made further progress in swampy country against tough enemy resistance."—(Reuter.)

RAIDS BY ALLIED AIR FORCES DURING WEEK-END

German Towns Struck by Large Numbers of Bombers

MORE than 1,000 Allied aircraft struck at the German towns of Dusseldorf and Brunswick on Saturday night. Mannheim also was bombed, as were the railway yards at Laon, in Northern France.

Earlier in the day nearly 1,000 American heavy bombers attacked Hamm, Germany's greatest rail junction

According to the Press Association, since Tuesday last 14,000 aircraft have made sorties over Europe, and it is estimated that 20,000 tons of bombs were dropped.

The British air Ministry report of Saturday night's operations described the attacks on Dusseldorf and Brunswick as "heavy," and added that an hour after the main force had left a reconnaissance aircraft saw great fire throughout Brunswick. Heavy bombers, the remainder of the force, and light bombers of the Ninth Air Force carried out a lightning attack on military objectives along the French coast at noon yesterday.

In the afternoon the Second Tactical Air Force made further attacks on the same area, and German aerodromes were bombed.

A Reuter's telegram from advanced Allied Headquarters, Mediterranean, yesterday, stated that strong formations of Italy-based heavy bombers attacked the Wiener Neustadt aeroplane factories yesterday, and the Bad Voslan Aeroadrome, 17 miles from Vienna.

Rome radio announced last night that yesterday morning and in daylight yesterday fighter and bomber formations carried out several raids on the outskirts of Rome.—

German radio, according to Associated Press, claimed that "the Anglo-Americans lost 113 aircraft, including one hundred four-engined bombers, between Saturday evening at 6 p.m. and 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

The German News Agency claimed that 68 British planes, mostly four-engined bombers, were shot down in fierce air combats over the Rhine area during Saturday night, and that in the earlier American raid on Hamm 34 aircraft, two-thirds of which were bombers, were shot down by fighters and ground defences.

The British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security stated yesterday that on Saturday night there was slight German activity over parts of Eastern England. Bombs dropped at one point caused a little damage. No one was seriously injured. One German aircraft was destroyed.

ALLIES HOLD ON TO IMPHAL

THE Japanese offensive has failed in its primary objectives in Manipur, and is losing its original impetus, says an official statement issued yesterday at S.E.A.C. H.Q. and quoted by Reuter. Imphal is still firmly held.

On the western side of the Imphal plain the Japanese have developed operations against the Bishenpur-Silchar track, and this may indicate some plan for linking formations pushing northwards on the west side of the Tiddim-Imphal road with those moving westwards from the Upper Chindwin to the north of Imphal.

A flaming miniature Pearl Harbour, with smoke rising 10,000 feet, was left behind by British and United States carrier-borne planes which struck at Sabang last week, cables Reuter's Special Correspondent at Admiral Mountbatten's H.Q. The outstanding exploit was the rescue by a British submarine of the United States pilot of a Hellcat which was shot down into the sea.

NEW LANDINGS

Allied troops have invaded Hollandia, Aitape and Tanahmerah Bay, in New Guinea, states a report from General MacArthur's H.Q. in the Pacific, quoted by Reuter's Special Correspondent, who adds that 100,000 Japanese troops have been cut off by these latest landings. Madang, Hansa Bay and Wewak having been by-passed. The seaborne Allied assault forces were covered by an umbrella of aircraft and supported by a flotilla of naval vessels. Little or no opposition was encountered, according to the correspondent.

Hollandia is on the north-eastern coast of New Guinea. It is a sea base about 200 miles north-west of Wewak, which MacArthur has already announced is being neutralised by Allied bombers. Aitape lies between Hollandia and Wewak.

The occupation of two more atolls in the Marshall Islands was announced in Washington. "These," says Admiral Nimitz, "were Rikub and Aur atolls."

Cardinal O'Connell Dies at 84

Born at Lowell, Massachusetts, Cardinal O'Connell was the son of Irish parents who emigrated from the borders of Cavan and Monaghan during the famine period. He was ordained at Rome in 1884, and was appointed Bishop of Portland, Maine, in 1901. He was named Assistant at the Pontifical Throne in 1905, and was created a Cardinal in 1911. He led the pilgrimage from Boston to the Eucharistic Congress at Dublin in 1932, and during the ceremonies he broadcast to the United States.

On the occasion of the jubilee of his ordination in 1934 he was the chief guest at a luncheon given by the Minister for the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite. When he was 80 he made his third trip to the Vatican City.

Second Front: Germans Say Holland Impregnable

"THE fortress of Holland is ready for coming events," said German Radio from Amsterdam last night.

"Since February 1st," it said, "all defence installations have been tested and inspected, and Dutch territory can now be considered at action stations. The necessary preparations for the flooding have been perfected."

The radio added that the German troops who volunteered to test the Dutch anti-invasion defences merely rendered their weapons unusable in a fruitless clash with the fortifications. No Allied troops could ever hope to pass through Holland," it claimed.

The cancellation of an undisclosed number of trains, beginning to-day, was announced last night by the Administration of the French Railways, says Vichy Radio.

A German High Command spokesman on Saturday said the Allied invasion was expected before the end of the month.

Mr. Donald Nelson, U.S.A. War Production Board Chairman, said in Chicago: "We have already produced 20,000 vessels, and when the present programme is completed, our armed forces will have 80,000 landing craft at their disposal, with 15 special types to perform every conceivable duty of amphibious warfare. The advance of our armies against the deep defences of Western Europe will be spearheaded by the American Sherman tank."

A Stockholm message states that 6,000 men, including airborne troops, as well as tanks, machine-guns and artillery, took part in new anti-invasion exercises held in Stockholm yesterday. The exercises were watched by the Crown Prince and General Helge Jung, the new Supreme Commander of Sweden's armed forces.

"Strike" on Greek Warships

THREE Greek warships which for three weeks have refused to obey orders were boarded on Saturday night by Greek officers and men acting under the orders of Vice-Admiral Voulgaris, Greek C.-in-C., it was officially announced in Cairo yesterday, states Reuter's Special Correspondent. The vessels are the destroyer Apostolia and the corvettes Ierax and Saktouris. There was some exchange of machine gun and rifle fire, and a few casualties were incurred. The ships have been recovered, and the flag of Vice-Admiral Voulgaris has been hoisted on the Saktouris, formerly H.M.S. Peony.

A spokesman for the Greek Political Parties in Cairo, according to an Associated Press cable, termed the refusal of the crews to obey orders more of a "sit-down strike" than a mutiny. A spokesman of the Greek forces, who staged this and other demonstrations, claimed that they were not mutineers; that their aim was to express dissatisfaction with the previous exile Government.

No Gas For These Workers

The Irish National Union of Vintners, Grocers and Allied Trades Assistants, at their annual Congress held in Dublin yesterday, passed a resolution requesting the Minister for Industry and Commerce to make the mid-day closing hour in licensed houses 1 to 2 p.m., instead of 2.30 to 3.30 p.m., in order to permit the workers to use the gas. A further resolution calls on the Minister to permit a 100 p.c. increase in permissive bonus.

Mr. W. Breen, President, dealing with the cost of living, said that all workers were seriously handicapped by increased costs, and the bonuses were not anything like adequate compensation. The members had been fortunate in securing increases ranging from 13s. to £1 a week, but even that did not give the lowly paid workers a decent standard of living.

Sweden Rejects Allied Demands

Allied counter-measures which might restrict Sweden's valuable safe conduct rights for her imports appeared likely yesterday in view of the Swedish rejection of the demands made to halt the flow of ball-bearing exports to Germany, cables an Associated Press Correspondent in Stockholm. The negative reply, he says, to the American demarche, to which both the British and Russian Governments added their support, was handed to the United States Minister on Saturday.

The Allied request, it is stated, contained a demand to Sweden to stop her ball-bearing exports to Germany for the next three months, and ended with a general threat of counter-measures if the request was not granted. It is understood that the Swedish reply declared flatly that Sweden was unable to violate her agreements.

Reuter's Staff Correspondent in Stockholm cables that Allied mining of the Baltic may be the answer to Sweden's refusal to stop exports of ball-bearings to Germany. Travellers arriving at Southern Swedish ports, he states, say that Allied bombers are systematically mining the approaches to Germany's Baltic harbours on a scale which, if continued, will make them too dangerous for merchant shipping.

A diplomatic spokesman is quoted as saying that the American Note stated that the United States Government would use all the means at its disposal to stop ball-bearings exports if the Swedish reply proved unsatisfactory.

M. Menemenjoglu, Turkish Foreign Minister, said yesterday in Istanbul, states Reuter's correspondent, that he would not have discussions with the British or American Ambassadors at present. He added that the ban on chrome exports to Germany did not affect other products.

He stated also that amicable relations between Turkey and Rumania were unaffected by the Turkish embargo on the Rumanian liners Transylvania and Bukovina.

LABOUR DEMANDS STATE ADVISORY COUNCIL

Problem of Absorbing Post-war Unemployed

SUPPORT for neutrality and the need for an Economic Council to advise the Government on the outlines of a plan for the reorganisation of the country's resources were among the subjects dealt with by Mr. W. Davin, T.D., in his presidential address at the Labour Party's congress in Dublin on Saturday.

Mr. Davin contended that, if the Government at the beginning of the war had boldly rationed commodities which were likely to be in small supply, much hardship would have been avoided.

Dealing with transport difficulties he said that, if a solution could not be found immediately, large sections of the people, especially in centres like Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Waterford and Galway, would be exposed to very severe inconvenience.

Holding that it was impossible to separate the money aspect from their consideration of the home market, Mr. Davin said that any plan for the post-war period which neglected the financial position, or which neglected to develop a home market, was worse than useless. Sooner or later, a large body of unemployed would be returning from the army to civil life or from employment elsewhere. These men and women would have formed opinions in regard to the social order, and, unless they could meet their reasonable demands, their dissatisfaction and agitation would shake the social order to its foundations.

Alluding to the demands made recently by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain for the removal of the German and Japanese representatives in Eire, he said that an agreement to such demands would have been a definite breach of the national policy of neutrality to which all parties had agreed.

Reviewing the incidents leading up to the disaffiliation of the Transport Union, Mr. Davin said that the reasons given for the union's action by its chief officials was "dishonest and misleading." Not one of its representatives on the Administrative Council raised the question of "Communist infiltration" during his period of office on the Council. There was going to be no settlement of the dispute on the basis of a surrender to a dictatorship inside the party by the chief officials of any union or group.

Opposing a motion, which was carried with two dissentients, to set up a National Advisory Committee, Senator M. Colgan said there were several youth organisations in the city, which, he alleged, were not under the auspices of the Labour Party, and which were not teaching Labour Party policy, but Communism.

Mr. J. Larkin, jun., T.D., said that one of the weaknesses in the Labour Party was that they had not succeeded in bringing to their side the young men and women of the country. Councillors Misses Louis Bennett, Chevenix and Mrs. Watters emphasised that it was of the utmost importance that the party should attract into its ranks the youth of the country.

Mr. W. Norton, T.D., moved a resolution, which was carried with two dissentients, reaffirming that the Labour Party was a Republican democratic party, pledged to the maintenance of parliamentary institutions, freely elected by the adult population, and rejecting the philosophies and policies of Communism and Fascism.

Another motion was passed calling on the Government to set up a National Development Commission to formulate plans for agriculture and industry, for the exploitation of electrical services, and devising means to increase the purchasing power of the poorer classes.

The conference then went into private session, and adopted the section of the annual report dealing with—"disruptive elements," including the Transport Workers' Union's "campaign of vilification against the Administrative Council," and the setting up of the Committee to probe the allegations of Communistic penetration, and the special report of that committee.

A resolution was passed empowering the Administrative Council to revise the Party Constitution and Standing Orders with a view to making the Council more representative of the country.

The following elections took place to the Administrative Council:—Chairman—Mr. Davin, T.D. Vice-Chairman—Mr. T. J. Murphy, T.D. Financial Secretary—Mr. R. J. Connolly, T.D. Members elected by the Conference — Councillor Miss L. Bennett (Dublin), Mr. C. Connolly (Cork), Mr. F. Foley (Dublin), Mr. D. Hanley (Dublin), Mr. M. Kilmartin (Kilcock), Mr. T. Larkin, junior, T.D.; Mr. G. Lynch (Dublin), Senator M. Smyth (Kildare), Mr. J. Swift (Dublin). Elected by the Parliamentary Labour Party—Mr. Norton, T.D.; Alderman M. O'Sullivan, T.D., Lord Mayor of Dublin; Mr. M. J. Keyes, T.D.; Senator S. Kyle, and Alderman R. Corish, T.D., Mayor of Wexford.

PLANNING FOR NEW ORDER

INFORMED public opinion first and Government action later—this is what the National Planning Conference expects from their exhibition, which will be opened by Mr. de Valera in the Mansion House, Dublin, to-morrow.

Far into the night young men—most of them students of architecture and engineering—will be at work on the centrepiece of the display—a spectacular plywood map of Ireland showing the major planning proposals. On Saturday they were cutting the strips of felt which will represent the super highways, the internal airways, the streamlined aerodromes, the belted agriculture, the central electricity generating stations, the luxurious holiday camps for workers, the national parks, the grouped industries, the afforestation districts, the hospitals and the clinics.

The conference feels that the respite from private development afforded by the emergency should be grasped to get the initial stages of planning into motion. Statutory recognition would easily follow the moulding of public opinion, an Irish Times reporter was told at the conference's Press conference on Saturday, and then the difficulties arising from private ownership and private development could be met by the machinery used by local authorities in their housing schemes. The Conference disagrees with the English method of leaving planning in the hands of local authorities. This, they say, has resulted in some clashes. First, there should be national, then regional, and then town planning. Denmark and Sweden are named as patterns.

Thinking in terms of the whole of Ireland, the Conference has been in touch with Mr. W. R. Davidge, F.R.I.B., consultant to the Northern Ireland Government, and with the Ulster Planning Group, which had a recent exhibition of housing in Belfast. The exhibition may tour the provinces later.

DAIL TO SIT EARLY

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

The Dail will sit to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock and continue in session till 9 p.m., the usual hour for adjournment.

The House will have to make up its mind as to the scheme for limiting deputies' speeches, and another matter will be the transport of deputies. Will they get priority of seats on the railway, or will they be obliged to take their chance with other intending travellers?

The amount of work to be done during the session is considerable. With the Estimates concluded this week, the Budget will come up on May 3rd. Thereafter the Transport Bill would seem to be the most pressing item, and it has to be followed by the Drainage Bill.

AN APPEAL WITHDRAWN

Harold C. Hoskins, Noreen, Dundrum, former Marine Superintendent of the Dublin Gas Co., has withdrawn his appeal against the sentence of six months in the second division, which was imposed on him in the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court last month for conspiracy and applying to his own use 14 of the company's batteries.

Penal Servitude For Robbery

After separate trials, each of which lasted two days, Michael Oboy (22), of Corna Hamsogue, Drumshambo, Co. Leitrim, and Bernard Gilmore (28), of Mahanagh, Drumshambo, both employed at the coal mines in Arigna, were sent to penal servitude for seven and five years, respectively, by Judge Gleeson at Boyle Court, where they were found guilty of robbery with violence from a fellow-miner, Patrick Joseph Moraghan (34), of Derreentoney, Drumshambo, on December 5th last.

It was stated in evidence that on December 5th last, when walking home with his fortnightly pay envelope unopened, Moraghan was attacked by the two accused men, whom he fought until he lost consciousness. His pay was taken, and for a fortnight he lost his memory. Oboy held him down while Gilmore searched him.

Defendants denied the charges.

Judge Gleeson, in imposing the sentence, said that the accused men were liable to penal servitude for life and, in addition, to a sentence of flogging.

Pioneer Driver Dead

The man who drove the first car in Britain, Mr. Frederick R. Simms, pioneer motorist, inventor and founder of the Royal Automobile Club, died on Saturday. He was just over 80. Mr. Simms coined the words "motor-car" and "petrol." A driver for 50 years, he began his motoring career in the days when the law required a man with a red flag to walk in front.

"Shadow" Rail Services In Force To-day

FROM this morning rail transport over the greater part of Eire is reduced to two days a week for passengers and four days for goods traffic. Skeleton road services will replace trains on eleven G.S.R. branch lines which have been closed, and will cater for passengers on four others.

As regards goods transport, the G.S.R. will give priority to such essential commodities as domestic fuel, agricultural seeds, manures, grains and a wide variety of foodstuffs, including bread, potatoes, butter, eggs, milk, meat, fish and poultry. Coal for industrial purposes also will come into the priority list, which will be reviewed from time to time.

Anticipations of a rush on bookings for to-day's trains did not materialise during the week-end, and it is unlikely that any train will be uncomfortably filled.

NO DEVELOPMENT

There has been no further development in the situation following last Wednesday's abortive meeting between company officials and representatives of railway trade unions.

Protesting against the G.S.R. Company's proposals to the men, Cork No. 1 Branch of the N.U.R. yesterday expressed the view that, while prepared to make sacrifices, "these should be made by all, including directors and senior officials, in proportion to earnings."

Referring to the conference with the unions at yesterday's Labour Party conference, Mr. J. Larkin, T.D., senior, paid tribute to the Irish Times for its "very fair report of the talks published on Saturday." With a due sense of responsibility the unions would fight the issue.

Mr. M. J. Keyes, T.D. (N.U.R.) said the company's attitude was impossible. They were not going back to the company; the company must come to them. The railwaymen were prepared to make sacrifices, but they had not been told if sacrifice was necessary, or to what extent it was necessary.

Mr. W. Norton, T.D., said the attitude taken up in this dispute was at variance with the Government's expressed desire early in the emergency—that employers should keep their staffs and not unload on their workers burdens which should be borne by employers.

A G.S.R. spokesman said last night that obviously the former volume of employment would not exist, and it would require utmost co-operation to ensure a fair spreading of the burden.

Commenting on a report of the Kingsbridge meeting published on Saturday, the spokesman described it as misleading. The company's disposal of various points raised had not been given and the spokesman quoted an extract from the remarks of the general manager:—"We are prepared to carry you with us as far as we can, and we expect and hope that you will be able to co-operate, and, possibly, to make suggestions as to how the difficulty can be got over best with the least hardship to all."

Radio in Trains

Tests made by the L.N.E.R. with radio telephones in trains show that after the war travellers will be able to communicate with their offices or homes during their journey.

Wife Murder Charge

On his second appearance in the Dublin District Court on Saturday, James Herbert Lehman, alias James McCague, no business, no fixed address, was further remanded in custody for a week on the application of Mr. William Conway, State Solicitor. Mr. Michael Noyk, solicitor, who appeared for Lehman, did not object. Lehman is charged with the murder of his wife, Margaret Lehman, née Hayden, at Leinster road, Rathmines, on March 19th last. The whole proceedings lasted little less than a minute.

Northern Exhibition to Tour Britain

The Northern Ireland Government has been asked by the Belfast Museum and Art Committee to set up a committee representative of the Government, the Corporation, the Tourist Development Association, Queen's University and other organisations to explore the ways and means of organising a Northern Ireland exhibition to tour cities in Great Britain. It was suggested that the exhibition should be on similar lines to those held in Belfast by other countries.

Six Home Guards Killed

A wounded Home Guard stumbled into the Essex village of Gestingthorpe yesterday and told of an explosion which had wiped out six out of nine men, and injured the others, at a lonely farm.

Police, hurrying to the spot, found the dead and wounded lying amid Home Guard appliances, which were scattered about the field. Capt. Philp, who was among the killed, had, apparently, been instructing the men in Home Guard weapons on his farm.

WHEN father bought John a Humber he was looking ahead. He knew that a Humber is made to last. He knew about Humber's sound design and craftsmanship, for he rides a Humber himself; has done so for years . . . Let's invest in the best for the boy then—a machine he'll take pride in and on which he'll be safe . . .

Old Belvedere Equal Rugby Cup Record

OLD BELVEDERE 6. U.C.D. 3.

SOMEWHAT battered and bent, but not broken, Old Belvedere got home by two penalty goals to one (6 points to 3) in the final of the Leinster Senior Rugby Cup on Saturday and equalled Lansdowne's record of five successive victories in the competition. It is a great record, especially for a club which has been in senior ranks for only seven years, and it would be asking too much to expect them to reproduce the sparkling Rugby which they were capable of playing during their first two or three cup successes.

The majority of their players on Saturday had figured in all the previous finals, and many of them seemed to be feeling the strain of trying to maintain their remarkable record of cup victories. Yet they retain their will to win, and can hold on to such opportunities as crop up in the course of a game. On this occasion, however, they had to thank the weakness of the opposing back division more than anything else for the winning of the game. Their forwards were beaten in all respects, and the backs could never reproduce that one brilliant flash which brought them through in the semi-final against Wanderers. It was truly a case of hanging on, rather desperately, to a slender lead, and, in consequence, the match kept a big crowd on their toes, despite the fact that the standard of play was not as high as in either of the semi-finals a week previously.

A FINE PACK

For the University College forwards the result was most disappointing. From the start they set up such a cracking pace that their opponents positively wilted in the early stages. Not only were they like terriers in the open, but they heeled like clockwork from set and loose scrums, and also got the ball back neatly and quickly from the line-out. All this good work went to waste. In the early stages O'Hanrahan's passing was lamentably wild, but Ryan, his partner, must bear a certain amount of the blame for standing too far away from the scrum. Even granting the fact that Ryan never knew at what height or angle the ball was going to come to him, his handling was poor, which was a pity, for his running was generally sufficiently hard and straight to draw in the Belvedere defence, thus leaving room for the wings if the ball ever did reach them.

In point of fact, the ball only once went right across the line of three-quarters, for O'Sullivan, in the centre, could seldom take a pass or give one properly—a damaged left wrist may have accounted for this to some extent—and O'Hagan was little better in this respect. The consequent neglect of two splendid wings in O'Flanagan and Johnston was fatal to U.C.D.'s chance. On the one occasion on which he received a pass from his centre, O'Flanagan brought off one of his astonishing runs across the field as a result of which the losers secured their penalty goal. Johnston had to rely on cross-kicks, but he seriously troubled the opposing defence a couple of times by clever running.

The College forwards, as I have said, gave their backs every opportunity of winning the match, and every one of the eight did tremendous work, but, at times, the wingers were over-zealous in their determination to tackle the Belvedere backs, and this cost them a penalty goal at a vital stage in the match. The Belvedere forwards worked hard, but found the pace too much for them at times, yet the outstanding man in their pack was Aird, who is probably the senior member of the fifteen.

THORPE'S VALUE

Behind the scrum, the winners owed a great deal to Thorpe, whose cleverness in selling the dummy and finding touch a long way down the field foiled the quick-breaking College forwards in their bee-line for the Belvedere midfield triangle. Kevin Quinn also played in a more determined spirit than usual and got exceptional length into his kicking, while the defensive covering of Brendan Quinn was invaluable on several occasions. Yet, the old snap and precision in the passing movements was missing, and the principal objective was the touch-line when the ball did come out. Keenan was the more reliable of the full-backs, but Dixon played well for Old Belvedere under considerable pressure in the early stages.

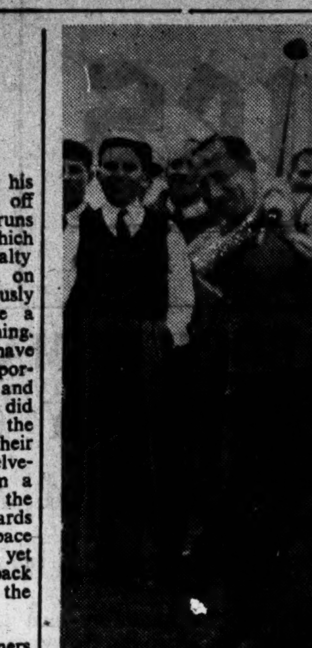

The losers did not get any of the lucky breaks which occur so frequently in the course of a hard-fought game. A few minutes after the start a fiery forward rush brought play to the Belvedere line, and I thought the referee was at fault in not awarding a free kick against Dixon for failing to play the ball on the ground. In one of the first Belvedere attacks O'Hagan was caught offside in front of his own posts, and Thorpe kicked a goal, but not long afterwards he himself was extremely fortunate to escape the offside penalty in a position which would have been favourable for equalising the points.

The next score came mid-way through the second half: Hayes was penalised for tackling Frank Quinn some time after the latter had parted with the ball, and Aird kicked a superb goal from almost the half-way line. Almost immediately came O'Flanagan's cork-screw run across the field through most of the opposing team, and from his kick ahead Old Belvedere were penalised in an easy position for Johnston to kick a goal. From then until the end Old Belvedere defended sternly and successfully.

PROVINCIAL TOWNS'

SKERRIES .... 17.
CURRAGH COMMAND 0.

Playing a more open brand of Rugby than most of the senior teams can produce, Skerries retained the Provincial Towns' Cup, beating Curragh Command by three goals (one penalty and one from a mark) and two tries to nil in the curtain-raiser to the senior final. Cashell and Lavelle (2) scored the tries, O. Duff converting one and kicking a penalty goal, and Lavelle dropped a goal from a mark. The losers were two men short in the early stages.

THE ARMY BEAT F.A.I. ELEVEN

THE ARMY ... 4 F.A.I. XI ... 2

THE Army gained their first victory over an F.A.I. team at Dalymount Park yesterday, and if they were a bit flattered by the score (4-2) they, nevertheless, deserved it. The soldiers put much more life into the game than did their opponents, whose inside forwards failed to play up to their club form, and gave a distinctly disappointing display.

POSITIONS CHANGED

The Army attack, even though Glennon, on the right wing, did not hit it off with Crowe, had more punch in it. It was not until they were three goals in arrears (4-1) with 25 minutes to go, that Donal Flanagan changed places with Kevin O'Flanagan, the Bohemian going into the centre. If the change had been made in the first half it probably would have brought about the desired result; as it was, it came too late.

THE ARMY BACKS

There was little between the sides in defence, but it was not until the second half that the Army backs were seen at their best. The half-backs, except Molloy, up to the interval, seldom found their feet, but when the civilians applied the pressure after change of ends Molloy, Kinsella and Martin (the latter has been signed by Shamrock Rovers for the Inter-City Cup games) defended stoutly. Coyle and Aherne always were sound fulls, and Crawley kept a very fine goal, one save nearing the end from O'Flanagan being a thriller. Fallon O'Leary and Crowe were the pick of the forwards. The F.A.I. middle line was weakened by the defection of Byrne, but Gannon and Farrell worked hard in front of steady backs in McGowan and Olphert. O'Flanagan, on the right wing and in the centre, was excellent, and young Venner, on the opposite wing, put in a lot of first-class work, but Coad, Cronin and Flanagan often have done much better.

Venner opened the scoring for the F.A.I. after five minutes, and, following a save by Flynn from a corner, Martin equalised (20 minutes). Crowe had a very clever goal for the Army (38 minutes), and then came a third for the soldiers from O'Leary, a smartly worked out one.

With a minute of the second half gone, O'Leary hit the cross-bar, and from the rebound Fallon netted the Army's fourth. The F.A.I. had long spells of attacking, but O'Flanagan's finely headed second was their only reward. Attendance, 15,531; receipts, £783.

CELTIC RETAIN IRISH CUP

As expected, Belfast Celtic retained the Irish Cup when they defeated Linfield by 3 goals to 1, at Windsor Park, Belfast, before a record crowd, the gate receipts amounting to £1,880—the highest in the history of the competition. Celtic deserved their success, for they played as a team, whereas Linfield were just so many units, but, on the whole, the play was unworthy of the occasion or the large attendance.

There were few decent attempts at scoring, and the first two goals to Celtic should have been saved, Twoomey making poor attempts at shots by Bonnar and McAlinden.

Linfield were handicapped by an injury to Feeney, their left back, who had to go to outside left, but Stark, their centre half, was the outstanding player on the field, and completely blotted out Byrne, the Celtic centre, while Vernon held the mastery over D. Walsh.

A. Kelly scored for Celtic in the second half, and Cochrane replied for Linfield from a pass by D. Walsh.

Champion 'Chase Won On Disqualification

THERE was a remarkably good attendance at Baldoyle on Saturday, which was not surprising, as the programme, transferred from Naas, gave promise of some very interesting sport. That promise was fulfilled, and there were several close finishes.

Biggest field of the afternoon contested the Dublin Maiden Hurdle, in which wagering took a very wide range. There was a complete turn-up, the spoils going to Mr. H. S. Gill's Barr Hill, who had previously figured as a sprinter, but now stayed on well to get the better of King of the Jungle and Cameraman II in a grand finish.

The Champion 'Chase went to Whelan on the disqualification of Mr. J. Landy's Erinox, who certainly appeared to have interfered with the former after they had crossed the last fence. Nevertheless, it was a piece of bad luck for the connections of Erinox to lose this nice prize in such a manner.

D. McCann rode a very strong finish to credit Mr. P. McGrath with the Celbridge Hurdle on the outsider, Blanche Tor, after the race had looked to rest between Uplander and Desert Corps. Details:—

G.S.R. Redemption Dates a Pleasant Surprise

NEWS of the severe cut in train services caused a sharp marking-down of G.S.R. stocks on the Dublin Exchange last week, but good buying at the lower levels enabled prices to close above the worst, though they still were much lower on the week.

Markets were relieved when the full text of the Transport Bill was published on Friday, but, with the exception of the Debenture stock, it had little effect on values.

It was a pleasant surprise for dealers to find that G.S.R. Debenture is to be redeemed in 1955, and, in any case, not later than 1960, and so the price went ahead to 91. Even at this level, it is considered a good purchase; for it is a Government guaranteed investment, paying 3 per cent., and has every chance of being paid off at par in eleven years.

Price movements in markets as a whole developed no decided trend, and business remained on the quiet side. The shares in those companies which are large consumers of coal were dull because of the serious fuel situation. Thus Alliance Gas Ordinary shares came back to 19s. 6d. The outlook for this company for the period of the emergency is very uncertain, and many people doubt if the existing hours of supply can be maintained. At the present price they look fully valued, but the post-war prospects are bright. If one is in a position to hold they should be worth picking up.

CEMENT SHARES

Cement Ordinary shares declined to 42s. 6d. This company has done well since the outbreak of war. It is dependent on adequate supplies of fuel, while another factor is that the home demand for cement has fallen off considerably, due to the almost standstill in building schemes and the slowing up in roads improvement and maintenance. Yet, this concern is well managed and should do well when more peaceful times return. It can, if in a position to do so, pay up to 10 per cent. during the emergency. The demand for cement in the post-war years should be great. They are considered a first class industrial holding.

The market in Draperies has dried up considerably. The reports recently issued showed that companies had done better than in the previous years. In certain cases where arrears of dividends are due many people expected that some payment would be forthcoming, but their hopes were dashed.

SUPPLY PROBLEM

The fall in Crowe Wilson and Co.'s net profits from £15,777 to £10,499 came as a disappointment, although Ord. shareholders are again receiving a dividend of 8 per cent. and a bonus of 2 per cent. The war brought a good deal of prosperity to drapery concerns in general. Their chief difficulty is the replenishing of stocks, and this will become even more difficult as long as the war lasts.

Hotel and catering establishments benefited from the reduction in transport services, and the opinion is that with the railway services further curtailed they should continue to do well. Dolphin Hotel Ord. shares sharply advanced to 100s., and they are buyers at the price. For some years past it has paid an Ord. dividend of 6 per cent., and on this basis they give a good return, while they also hold scope for capital appreciation.

1916 Commemoration

Traffic was stopped for an hour yesterday in O'Connell street, Dublin, for the annual commemoration ceremony of the 1916 insurrection. Veterans of the Dublin Brigade, I.R.A.; Irish Citizen Army, Fianna Eireann, and Cumann na mBan participated in a parade which assembled at St. Stephen's Green and marched to the G.P.O., accompanied by several bands. After the sounding of the Last Post the 1916 Proclamation was read in Irish and English by Traolach Mordha, whose father and mother took part in the rising.

ULSTER WIN HOCKEY INTERPROVINCIAL

ULSTER.......... 2 LEINSTER...... 1

There was a surprise ending to the play-off for the Senior Interprovincial Championship on Cliftonville ground, Belfast, on Saturday, Ulster scoring in the last minute to beat Leinster 2-1, after being on the defensive most of the time.

It was a poor match, in which neither side settled down on a very bumpy pitch. Leinster were the chief sufferers in this respect.

Gold as Standard of Value

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE first stage of the post-war restoration of elasticity and freedom to international trade has been achieved by the agreement of the experts on the plan for an international monetary fund. At present it commits nobody. It is open for discussion and criticism by peoples and parliaments. In fact, however, it forms a firm foundation on which world agreement may be built.

One of its most striking features is the insistence of gold as the ultimate standard of value. World currencies vary widely, and if trade is to be carried on there must be some common standard of value by which these currencies may be measured, and the conclusion is reached that gold still has no rival in this regard.

From one section of the community there will be little criticism, i.e., the many thousands of investors in gold mining shares. They will feel that the doubt and uncertainty that for some years has been cast on their commodity is in process of being dispelled.

INSURANCE STRENGTH

The strong position of British insurance companies has been emphasised during the present week by a number of dividend announcements, all showing that previous rates of payment are being maintained. Although it is probably true to say that the rate of interest earned by the companies' invested funds has never been lower than it is to-day, caution in issuing new policies and efficiency in management have enabled the companies to keep their profits and the income of their stockholders' stable.

ELECTRIFICATION

One of the most important developments in connection with British Railways in post-war years is likely to be a wide extension of electrification. Recent statements in Parliament indicate that the matter is under the consideration of the Ministry of Transport, while it is known that the executives of the railway companies are also giving it a considerable amount of attention. But for the war there is little doubt that the past five years would have seen many hundreds of miles of railway added to those already electrified. To a large extent the problem involved is one of finance. A vast amount of replacement will have to be undertaken after the war, and the combination of this with electrification schemes would seem to be a wise and economical procedure.

EQUIPMENT

Any large schemes of electrification must necessarily mean a substantial demand for the products of the leading electrical equipment companies, and should keep them active for many years after the war. This is but one of the many forms in which the demand for the products of these companies will be seen. As investments, therefore, the shares of these equipment companies may be regarded as first-class.

ROYAL DUBLIN GOLF CLUB

The President, Major W. N. Foster, D.S.O., at the annual meeting of the Royal Dublin Club on Saturday evening outlined the position of the club in relation to the plans which the Irish Tourist Board have in view for the improvement of Dollymount as a resort for the citizens, and which were fully dealt with in last Thursday's Irish Times. He told the members that they were "absolutely held up" by the Government, the Corporation and the Tourist Board.

The officers, however, were going to meet the Board, and obtain, if possible, from it, some definite statement as to how much ground it would require. There was a fine playing ground at Dollymount, and the club would assist the Board in every way possible. Their chief concern was the erection of the new clubhouse. They could not carry on indefinitely in their temporary clubhouse. It would be essential to build the clubhouse away from the bus road, which will run to the end of the Bull Wall, and if they had to hand over all the ground that the Board had their eye on it would mean that the club probably would have to take over a portion of the St. Anne's course.

Mr. A. E. Prentice was appointed captain, and Mr. J. F. Hudson was re-appointed hon. treasurer and acting hon. secretary. Mr. A. A. Brunker resigned from the committee, and Mr. P. E. Mathews was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. W. R. McCaw, Mr. J. Ryan and Mr. S. W. Lee were co-opted to fill other vacancies on the committee.

CROSS-COUNTRY

With a team which included the two Civil Service cracks, Brian Downey and Leo Jackson, the 44th Battalion (Rifles) of the L.D.F. seemed to have an outstanding chance of winning the championship of the Dublin district of the force in the Phoenix Park yesterday. As anticipated, Downey and Jackson drew away from the field and entered the last of the four miles with a substantial lead, but P. McMahon, of the Rathfarnham district team, put in a very strong finishing mile and finished between the pair.

1, B. Downey (44th Rifles), 25.57; 2, P. McMahon (Rathfarnham), 26.4; 3, L. Jackson (44th Rifles), 26.9; 4, B. Curry (11th Engineers), 27.3; 5, P. Tunney (Collinstown), 27.4; 6, W. Worrell (Rathfarnham), 27.19. Team Placings—1, Rathfarnham, 2, 6, 10, 11, 14, 28—71 pts. 2, 44th Rifles, 1, 3, 12, 17, 20, 21—74 pts. 3, 43rd Battalion, 8, 15, 18, 22, 23, 24—110 pts.

Other team placings:—4, Collinstown; 5, 41st Battalion; 6, 11th Battalion (Engineers); 7, Dun Laoghaire. Unplaced teams:—42nd Battalion, 11th Battalion (Cyclists), 43rd Battalion (No. 2 team), 45th Battalion.

THUILLIER RETAINS FOIL TITLE

Winning the final hit of a deciding barrage, H. Thuillier retained the men's senior foil championship at the Achilles Club, Parnell square, Dublin, on Saturday night. H. Thuillier (Achilles)—4-1, 1; C. Uhlemann (Dublin)—4-1, 2; J. Whyte (Achilles)—3-2, 3; N. Thuillier (Achilles)—3-2, 4; T. Thuillier (Achilles)—1-4, 5; T. Smith (Achilles)—1-4, 6. H. Thuillier beat Uhlemann by 5 hits to 4 in a deciding barrage to win the event, and Whyte beat N. Thuillier by 5 hits to 0 in a deciding barrage for third place.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour. The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into you bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxative helps a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-.

EMERGENCY POWERS (SOLE LEATHER) (MAXIMUM PRICES) ORDER 1944.
Notice is hereby given that an Order, entitled as above, has been made by the Minister for Supplies, with effect as from the 24th April, 1944. The Order revokes Emergency Powers (Sole Leather) (Maximum Prices) Order, 1943 (S.R. and O., No. 343 of 1943). Maximum prices set out in the previous Order remain unchanged, but, as a result of representations from the leather trade, the new Order provides that pairs of whole soles and pairs of top-pieces shall bear the same maximum price as that for pairs of half-soles, viz., 4d. per ounce. In addition, as it has been found that the dimensions laid down in the previous Order for pairs of half-soles did not cover half-soles for exceptionally large footwear, the new Order does not provide a limit to the dimensions of a pair of half-soles.
The Order forbids the sale of bends unless there is stamped thereon the appropriate classification mark and the maximum retail price per lb., and prohibits the sale of the following descriptions of leather at prices exceeding those set out hereunder:—
Range .... 3½d. per oz.
Pair of half-soles (cut from a bend) .... }
Pair of whole soles (cut from a bend) .... } 4d. per oz.
Pair of top-pieces (cut from a bend) .... }
Other pieces of leather used for soleing footwear) .... 2d. per oz.

The Irish Times

MONDAY, APRIL 24, 1944.

COMMONWEALTH POLICY

The conference of Prime Ministers, which will be held in London in the near future, is likely to be a milestone in the history of the British Commonwealth. It will be attended by the heads of the Governments of the four overseas British Dominions—Mr. Mackenzie King, of Canada; General Smuts, of South Africa; Mr. Fraser, of New Zealand; and Mr. Curtin, of Australia. With the exception of the last named, all these statesmen have attended previous meetings in London; but the forthcoming gathering is likely to be different from any of those that have been held in the past. Its terms of reference will be nothing less than the whole future of that remarkable institution known as the British Commonwealth of Nations, the present Charter of which, by one of those paradoxical accidents so common in its affairs, actually was due to the efforts of an Irishman; for, when all is said and done, the foundations of that historic edifice, the Statute of Westminster, were laid in consequence of the work of the late Kevin O'Higgins in 1926. When the first Great War broke out in 1914, a large body of world opinion was firmly convinced that the British Empire, as it was known then, would fall asunder at the first impact of belligerent realities. In fact, it did nothing of the sort. Then, in the period between the wars, the constitutional structure of the British Commonwealth was changed. It became a voluntary association of free peoples, bound and cemented together by common interests, common ideals, common traditions, and a common language, having, as the outward and visible sign of its inward and spiritual unity, the symbol of the British Crown. Every one of the Dominions had the acknowledged right to secede from the Commonwealth if and when it might choose to take that step. Every one of them had an equal right to refuse to come to the help of Great Britain in time of war. Yet it is a remarkable, and almost inexplicable, fact that when the second world war broke out, nearly five years ago, the Dominions, without exception, sprang instantly to arms. In this connection, and in view of certain things that have happened since, probably the most remarkable fact is that Canada entered the war more than two years before the United States. Canadian, South African, Australian and New Zealand troops have fought on virtually every battlefield where the British flag has been carried. Their flying men have played a conspicuous part in aerial operations all over the world. Their resources have been placed at the service of a common cause. Yet, in the very nature of things, it would be futile to pretend that there always has been an entire community of political opinion between Great Britain and the Dominions. It is for this reason that the forthcoming conference in London will be so vitally important.

The main purpose of this conference will be considerations of what may be described as an enlightened self-interest. It is generally realised that the post-war world will differ radically from that in which the present generation was reared. Great Britain is likely to be substantially poorer, and it has been estimated—indeed, affirmed—that, if her people are to compensate themselves for the loss of those invisible exports represented by interest and dividends on their foreign investments, a large share of which already has been realised to help to pay for the war, their ordinary exports will need to be increased after the war by at least fifty per cent. In order to achieve this object the Dominions' markets must be developed. Likewise, if the Dominions themselves are to remain reasonably prosperous when the war is over, their position in Britain's home market will have to be secured. The economic organisation of the world probably will be dominated to a great extent by Russia and the United States with their respective populations of 180,000,000 and 130,000,000, and consequently Great Britain and the Dominions, already a kind of economic unit, will need to put their commercial and industrial house in order. Recent debates in the House of Commons have shown that there is unanimity of opinion in Great Britain on this point. The member who stressed it most vigorously and eloquently last week was Mr. Emanuel Shinwell, the Jewish Labour representative of Seaham Harbour, whose speech would have done credit to the most thickly-crusted Tory. The Dominions also realise that in the post-war world, more truly than ever before, unity, and particularly economic unity, will be strength. The suggestion even has been made that the basis of the British Commonwealth shall be broadened in such a way as to provide for the possible adherence, if not actual membership, of other countries, such as, for example, Greece, Norway and Holland, for purely economic purposes. Of course, from the political point of view, the whole tendency among the Dominions—a tendency which is appreciated thoroughly in London—is towards even fuller independence, if such be possible, than is enjoyed at present. There was a terrific brouhaha in Canada recently when Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador to Washington, suggested in a speech that the Commonwealth might pursue a joint foreign policy; and it is obvious that, having reached their full stature as independent nations, the Dominions never again will acquiesce in anything that even might suggest the political hegemony of the United Kingdom. Nevertheless, the Commonwealth's essential unity has been tested in the fiery crucible of war, and it has not been found wanting. How that unity can be adapted to the thousand and one post-war problems of world politics and world economics will be the task of the London conference to discover. It will not be an easy task, but the survival of the British Commonwealth, including the United Kingdom, will depend upon its fulfilment.

The "Irish Times"

The average reader seldom pauses to consider type as type. He knows little of the niceties of serifs, "ex-heights," width, weight or style. To him type is the medium through which are conveyed to him, every day, in his newspaper, intelligence from the four corners of the world, and in his books the art and wisdom of every age. It is right that this should be so. If type obtrudes itself, even for an instant, between the reader and the sense of what he is reading, then it is bad type, and all the efforts of the typographer have been in vain. Throughout the long months of preparation, from the presentation of the first drawings by the artist to the cutting of the final punches and matrices, one aim has been foremost in the minds of all concerned: the production of a type-face to form words, lines, paragraphs and pages which will appear, in every possible combination of letters, close, even, uniform and, above all, legible. However effectively the work may have been done, change always is noticeable, and few readers of this newspaper this morning will have failed to remark, to a greater or less degree, some change in the familiar appearance of its pages. In these days of coupons, new dresses, even in the spring, are not so plentiful as they once were; yet this morning the Irish Times appears, from head to foot, in a new dress. The old type, which so faithfully and so efficiently has served its day and generation, has gone, every letter of it, and in its place appears the newest of new type. Commissioned by a world-famous newspaper for its own pages, and designed throughout with one paramount object in view—the production of the perfect type-face for a newspaper under modern conditions, clear, sharp and legible in all its sizes, this letter has been selected only after the most careful and patient research and experiment. It is not without a pang of regret that we part with the type which we have used for so long; yet it is with considerable pride that we present this new type-face to our readers, confident that its outstanding qualities of clarity and legibility will render it, in due course, as familiar and well-beloved as the old.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

THE intelligence that a publishing house is offering 'prizes' of sums totalling £1,000 for school readers in Munster Irish, Connacht Irish and Ulster Irish is the most ominous that has reached us Gaels in years. It is monstrous. Irish, we are agreed, cannot be revived because it is a babel rather than a language, a welter of shrill provincial jealousies. It requires to be attacked with a sledge-hammer, made simple, uniform and rational. Far from addressing this task, the present situation is to be perpetuated for at least another generation of distracted school-children. Thank heaven I do the Leaving June next. (Write to me privately if you are aware of anything more loutish than our present brood of Ulster 'novelists,' with their wee paroxysms of dialect).

There is in this country a very fine, utterly national organisation named Ailtirí na hAiséirghe. They wish to remove Partition and write as follows in a recent circular:

"2,000,000 signatures will be sought and thus the statesmen of the world will be confronted and challenged with the definitive expression of what is the Will of Our People today as yesterday.

"The Plebiscite can be fixed for a date in the Autumn, which in addition can be established as a National Day of Mourning for the criminal dismemberment of our country."

I do not ask you to dwell on this puling, essentially east-European, tosh about "a National Day of Mourning." I draw your Gaelic attention to this extraordinary inscription at the top of the letter:

A READER PROTESTS!

"I have been reading your column (though I would not admit it to any self respecting Irishman) and I gather from it that you must be an Englishman. I am almost sure you are not Irish, though if by any chance you are, then, in the words of the Immortal song, "you are all a knave or half a slave to slight your country thus." Presuming that you are a Sasanach, I would like to tell you that it is our own business whether we play our National Anthem or not. If we like to hear it twenty times a day all your sarcastic eloquence and wit would not stop us or dismay us one bit, but I have heard "rumours" that before we gained the Independence of the 26 Counties that it was paramount to treason to remain seated while God Save the King was being played in our theatres. Thank God we don't have to listen now to an Anthem that was constantly saluting not us but the Imperialistic Yes-man of a foreign power.

"I quote your words—Why can't we be just Irish and leave it at that? When that day dawns Mr. "Ná Gcopaleen" you and the pro-British rag for which you work will be thrown out of the country renegade Irish Editor and all!

"You cant understand this and you cant understand that. Well there are many things I cant understand and one of them is why the Irish people put up with you and the likes of you. That beats me. As regards depriving you of your English language you need have no fear on that score because you are quite welcome to it and as regards the Irish people being unworthy of Trinity College, in my opinion it it vica versa for Trinity is patterned too much on the lines of Oxford and Cambridge even though such great Irish Heroes as Emmet and Tone were educated there. I presume you were educated there otherwise you would not have such an inflated opinion of the Institution founded by "Liza".

WEARISOME

Surely somebody has already referred to the British Cabinet as His Majesty's West-Ministers? Who is supposed to deal with these things? Why is there nobody here to whom I can delegate authority? Must I do everything myself?

WEDDING

RUSSELL—McKEEVER — The wedding took place on Friday last at St. Stephen's Church, Dublin, of Mr. James M. H. Russell, A.C.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Russell, Cargen, Cremore Park, Glasnevin, Dublin, and Miss Dorothy McKeever, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. McKeever, Shanlis House, Ardee, Co. Louth. The Service was conducted by the Rev. H. McKane, Rector of Syddan, assisted by the Rev. Canon W. T. Grey, Rector of St. Stephen's. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by her sisters, the Misses Marjorie and Kitty McKeever. Mr. A. E. Stokes was best man, and the groomsmen in the church were Mr. W. McKeever, Mr. J. Marshall, Mr. W. Manning and Dr. N. H. Lindsay. A reception was subsequently held at the Shelbourne Hotel.

PREVENTION OF "T.B."

Films dealing with the prevention and cure of tuberculosis were shown by the National Film Institute at a meeting in the Oak Room of the Mansion House, Dublin, on Saturday. Delegates of the Labour Party Congress and members of the Irish Women Workers' Union were present.

Dr. Kevin McArdle, who represented the anti-tuberculosis section of the Irish Red Cross, in an address, said he felt that if any campaign were to be successful, it must aim at discovering early cases of the disease and removing them to a sanitorium for treatment. In this respect mass-radiography would be of great value in discovering these cases, particularly among large groups of industrial workers and those in exposed communities. There was need for a scheme to deal with the rehabilitation of the post-sanitorium cases.

IRISH DISTRESSED LADIES' FUND

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish Distressed Ladies' Fund was held at 6 Merrion square, Dublin, on Friday last, Major Guillamore O'Grady presiding. There were also present:—Mrs. G. Stewart, Miss Rose Vernon, Miss Gaisford St. Lawrence, Miss Kenny, Lady De Freyne, Mr. Cyril H. Dickinson, and Mr. W. F. Coombes (secretary).

The total sum authorised to assist necessitous cases for the month of May amounted to £198 2s. 8d.

A.R.P. EXERCISE

An A.R.P. evacuation and incident exercise, conducted by the Chief A.R.P. Officer, Mr. H. McGowan, was held on Saturday morning last in the Custom House. Commandant J. Kearns complimented the A.R.P. squads, who displayed much efficiency.

The L.S.F. of the Store Street Group co-operated in the exercise.

FILM NOTES

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

ONCE upon a time there was an efficient and pretty secretary, whose name was Jean Wells, and she was more or less in love with her employer, Mr. Mark Turner. Mark's affections, however, were fixed upon one Val Stevenson, a night club singer, and when he told Jean that he intended to marry this lady, his secretary was so disturbed mentally that she went to seek the advice of the handsome psychiatrist, Dr. Bill Perry. Dr. Perry suggested that she should try to make Mark jealous by pretending that she also was engaged. Jean took kindly to this advice, and asked Dr. Perry if he would co-operate by posing as her fiancé. The doctor, being a misogynist, refused, on the grounds that he was a married man; Jean, however, knew this to be untrue, and threatened to make her knowledge public should he not do as she asked. Thus intimidated, Perry fell in with her plans, and thereby paved the way for a foursome comedy romance along the accepted lines. The foregoing situation, prehistoric though its general principles may be, is the main theme of All By Myself (Capitol), and the fact that this film is very good entertainment is to the everlasting credit of all concerned with its production. It is only fair to say that there are some poisonous cabaret interludes, and that Rosemary Lane seems singularly uninspired in the thankless role of the night club singer, but Patric Knowles, Evelyn Ankers and Neil Hamilton do very well as the three other extremities of this romantic rectangle. To my mind, "All By Myself's" chief virtue is that it stops as soon as the joke is played out. It is quite a short film.

Air-Raid Wardens (Royal) — A liking for Laurel and Hardy is one of those things that it is very hard to explain. There are many more effective comedians, but, to my mind, no rival comedy team has such a grip upon the affections of an audience. This is not one of their brighter efforts, and the plot is infuriatingly cluttered up with unconvincing topicalities, but the sequence in which Laurel attempts to sign his name on a docket atones for a great deal.

Admirers of Errol Flynn can see him twice this week—at the Adelphi in The Adventures of Robin Hood, in which he is dressed as Robin Hood, and at the Savoy in They Died With Their Boots On, in which he is dressed as General Custer. In each case, Olivia de Havilland is his demurely decorative partner. "Robin Hood" has the better supporting cast, and is, I think, the more imaginative film, but there is plenty of noisy action in the Savoy. Arthur Lucan puts in a great deal of vigorous buffoonery in Old Mother Riley Overseas (Corinthian), the latest film in this popular series. Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone are back in The Bride Wore Red, the Grafton's romantic-dramatic offering for the week, and Jascha Heifetz, the violin virtuouso, is fiddling his occasional way through a rather banal screen play in Melody of Youth (Green). The Grand Central have re-issued Third Finger, Left Hand, the witty Loy-Douglas comedy of a few years ago. Those who missed King's Row can still catch up with this brilliant drama at The Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire.

ROYAL HIBERNIAN ACADEMY

GOOD PORTRAITS

THERE is no picture by Jack B. Yeats on the right-hand wall of the central room as one enters the Academy exhibition this year, and as those artists who, with Mr. Yeats, constitute contemporary Ireland's most distinguished colourists, that is to say, Grace Henry, Evie Hone, Jack P. Hanlon, and Nano Reid, are entirely unrepresented in the exhibition, it falls to Mr. Keating and Mr. Kernoff to provide the imaginative light as against the realistic shade, the poetry as against the prose, of the array of portraits that, as usual, hang there. Mr. Keating has one of his big harbour scenes, with splashes of scarlet and blue, and further down a study of a woman in a red shawl; Mr. Kernoff has been to Kerry. That has brought up his palette a good deal, and his "Tralee Mountains from Killarney" has, in its pure decorative way, a good deal of charm.

YEATS'S PICTURES

Mr. Yeats has four contributions this year in the upper room. Two of them hang on the opposite wall. "Blackbird Bathing in Tir-na-nOg," a superbly rich exercise in colour harmonies, and "The Salt Marshes," a landscape with a dream-like white horse at full gallop.

It is on this wall that one of the President's two contributions this year is also to be found—a simple portrait study of a child in a tam o' shanter, painted, it appears, a good many years ago. Not less vivid is his other picture, a small portrait of "R. A. S. Macalister, Esq., D.Litt."

In the upper room also, Gallery No. 2, thirteen pictures by the late Sarah H. Purser have been hung.

SLEATOR'S CONTRIBUTIONS

James Sleator's portraits of "Dr. James Ryan, Minister for Agriculture," of the "Dean of St. Patrick's," of "Dr. R. I. Best," of "Raymond Brooke, Esq.," and of "Mr. Commissioner Waddell" (Rutheford Mayne), are in admirable taste, and packed with technical accomplishment. So is William Leech's "skied" "Lex de Renault, Esq."

Of Sean O'Sullivan's six contributions, his spaciously grand design is, perhaps, most evident in the portrait of "Mrs. R. M. Smyllie," and his drawing of "James Larkin" reveals his impressive gifts as a draughtsman most sympathetically.

Sympathy is also evident in Leo Whelan's small but brilliant posthumous portrait of "The Late Ralph Brereton Barry, SC.," and in Margaret Clarke's austerely sensitive "Mrs. John MacAvin."

Maurice MacGonigal sends three portraits this year, as well as a trio of characteristic landscapes, and academicians or associates contributing portraits included Messrs. Collie, Conor, Hayes, de Burca and Leonard. The landscape artists, Paul Henry, McKelvey, Craig, Lamb, Miss Solomons, Miss Hamilton, Miss Davidson, and Mrs. Ganly.

Lady Glenavy follows her own line of distinguished fantasy, and Mr. Henessey gives his admirers good measure.

Among the sculpture exhibits Laurence Campbell's study for the head of the stirring and plastically impressive "Sean Heuston" statue in the Phœnix Park calls for special mention.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

RESIDENTS in the Boreham Wood district of Hertfordshire have heard with delight that Sir Alexander Korda and M.G.M. British Studios have bought the Amalgamated Film Studios there, and that a 10-year £35,000,000 programme of film-making is to be carried out after the war. The Boreham Wood studios were completed just after the last war, and are among the largest in the country. Provision was made for possible expansion, and it is certain that there will be work for hundreds of film technicians. When fitted with the latest equipment, the studios should be the most up-to-date in the world. At present the only studios operating at Boreham Wood are British National, which has been turning out films consistently during the war. One of this company's leading scrip writers is Miss Brigid Boland, M.A., daughter of Mr. John P. Boland, who was M.P. for South Kerry for eighteen years. Sir Alexander Korda is at present renting stages at Denham, where two big pictures, starring Robert Donat and Deborah Kerr, are going into production shortly.

St. George's Day

The commemoration of England's patron saint, falling on a Sunday this year, enabled many more people than usual to take part in the national festival. In London the Royal Society of St. George had a packed house for their national concert in the Albert Hall, at which Basil Cameron conducted the National Symphony Orchestra, the B.B.C. chorus and the Luton choir. Four distinguished soloists appeared, and works by Purcell, Delius, Elgar, Butterworth and John Ireland were heard. This evening there was a special Service of rededication in the Chapel of St. George at Westminster Abbey.

Religious Tolerance

The religious tolerance in Liverpool to-day was emphasised when the Liverpool Council Chamber was filled to capacity for the city's official farewell to the Anglican bishop and Mrs. David. Alderman Austin Harford, Liverpool's first Catholic Lord Mayor, headed a notable company, which included Lord Derby, Archbishop Downey, Sir Sydney Jones, Alderman A. E. Shannon (leader of the Council), Alderman Luke Hogan, the Bishop of Warrington, the Dean of Liverpool and other prominent citizens. Alderman Harford said that, although Dr. David differed in religious persuasion from himself, they all had a great and profound admiration of the conscientiousness with which he had devoted his labours all the time to good and meritorious causes, and his insistence on Christian standards. All creeds had subscribed to the presentation of over £2,000 which would be made by Lord Derby. Lord Derby said that never a more broad-minded man had existed than Dr. David, and it was to him that they owed the great friendship which existed in Liverpool between all the religious bodies. Dr. David, replying, said he was especially glad and proud that Archbishop Downey had thought it fitting to be present. He was convinced that the range of good works of the separate faiths was widening every year.

Public Cleansing

Long experience of public cleansing problems has led Mr. H. Ardern, the City of Westminster's Director of Public Cleansing, to say that the articulated vehicle has a great future in public cleansing. Articulation is meant to apply to the design of a vehicle having the motive power, either petrol or electricity, as a separate unit to the trailer. All the streets in Westminster are washed by these mechanical "horses," and 1,200 gallon capacity tank trailers, between 1 a.m. and 4 a.m. From 5 a.m. the "horses" are employed with refuse collection trailers, after which they are used on general transport work. The complete vehicle turns round in less than its own length without reversing. Any of their petrol engines which requires a complete overhaul can be removed and replaced by a serviceable one in seven hours, but this is usually necessary only once in two years. Mr. Ardern also uses large numbers of electric "horses" because of their noiseless operation. The cost is small, as the batteries are charged at a much reduced rate during off-peak periods, and maintenance costs are very low. In some provincial towns power for the charging of the batteries is obtained from the incineration of refuse.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Boys' Brigade

At the finale of the 52nd Annual Inspection of the 14th Company of the Boys' Brigade in the Metropolitan Hall on Friday night the past members marched in in column of fours behind the band. A moment later the present members, in their pill-box caps and white bandoliers, marched in their turn, threaded their way through the old members, and formed up in a solid phalanx before the dais.

The band struck up "Auld Lang Syne," and the past and present arms linked, marched around the hall together.

This Boys' Brigade is more than sixty years of age. It was formed by Mr. William Smith, of Glasgow, who was later knighted. Its ranks are military ranks; its aims are entirely peaceful.

Badges of Merit

Twelve is the minimum age at which one can join the Boys' Brigade, although one can serve a form of apprenticeship, as a Life Boy—in a sailor cap—until twelve. Seventeen is the maximum age. After that, save in exceptional cases, one must resign, until one becomes eligible, at twenty-two, for a commission. The boys who stay on receive the rank of staff-sergeant, and carry four white chevrons on their sleeve. They also wear a navy-blue forage cap, with white piping.

There are many badges to be won in the brigade. There are courses in fire-fighting, gym, first-aid, life-saving and signals. Regular attenders at parades can also gain silver diamonds.

Busy Day

On Saturday, at Kildare Barracks, fourteen artillery officers received their commissions from Mr. Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence. The commissioning ceremony began at eleven o'clock. As soon as it was over two of the new officers began to look round in a hurry for transport. They were playing for the Curragh Command, against Skerries, in the final of the Provincial Towns Cup, beginning at a quarter past two at Lansdowne road.

In the end, one of them made a find. There was a seat in a car leaving for Dublin. But the car was Mr. Oscar Traynor's. And the other passengers were Lieutenant-General D. McKenna, Chief of Staff; Colonel J. Flynn, the Adjutant-General, and Colonel L. Egan, the Quartermaster-General.

The position was explained to Mr. Traynor. He at once invited the new young officer to travel with him. For the other one there was, unfortunately, no room. Under the circumstances it would have been awkward to have anybody sitting on anybody else's knee.

They both got to Lansdowne road, however, in the end, to find that Skerries had scored twice in their absence.

Jane Eyre

"Jane Eyre," entering its last week at the Gate Theatre, has broken all kinds of records. It has run longer than any other play in this theatre; it has played to more people, per show, than any other production in this theatre; and the box-office receipts are the biggest ever. I asked Micheal MacLiammoir why these things should be. He said: "It's the old Cinderella theme. These really old fairy-tale stories seem to contain something that is as old as the human race itself, and as fascinating. Base a play on one of them — and you can't go wrong."

Ticket Catcher

Dear Mr. Luke,

In the omnibuses belonging to your company things are provided in which customers are invited to put their tickets. They are asked to put their tickets in these things because paper is in short supply, and even a penny ticket, properly multiplied, can produce an enormous amount of pulp. But, Mr. Luke, the customers cannot get their tickets into these receptacles. The slots are long, but narrow. The receptacles are so deeply sunk in the surrounding scenery that they cannot be found, except by the careful searcher.

Surely something could be invented to catch the eye and the ticket? Some yawning space that no traveller could overlook?

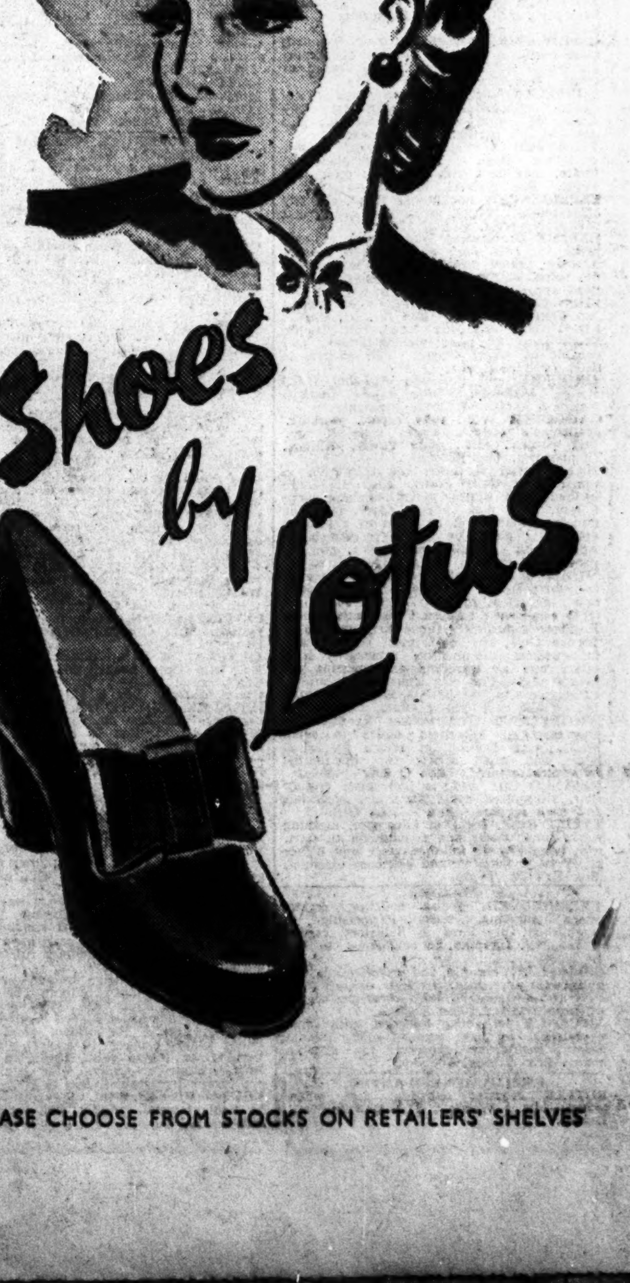

Let this be considered.

Yours sincerely,

QUIDNUNC.

Manchester's gas supply to the 220,000 consumers was restored to normal early yesterday, following the two days' strike of 500 corporation gas workers, which was called off by the men on Saturday.

Soviet railwaymen have restored nearly 20,000 miles of lines since the war began, and have built more than 5,000 bridges, says Red Star yesterday.—(Reuter.)
